STRIKE COLLAPSING.

The strike of organized labor in Washington against the "open shop" is on the verge of collapse. The labor leaders yesterday permitted union men to work with nonunion plumbers on the Municipal Building. As it was the presence of nonunion plumbers at this building which first caused the general dissatisfaction that subsequently cul-minated in the strike, the surrender of the labor leaders yesterday is assumed to mean the abandonment of the struggle, and it is expected that all the union men now on strike will make every effort to seek employment at their former jobs. Not many of them, however, will be successful, for the Employers' Association claims that it has, with the exception of plasterers, all the skilled labor it needs.

The collapse of the strike, while not unexpected, is the more remarkable because of the elaborate preparations that were made by organized labor to bring it about. About three weeks ago the leaders of all national and international labor organizations were summoned to Washington to confer on the wisdom of selecting the national capital as the battleground for a decisive strike for the principle of the closed shop. About two-thirds of the leaders of the great labor organizations went to Washington and were in session for more than a week. They sought a conference with the employers, but their overtures were curtly refused. There remained then nothing to be done but to order a general strike against all employers who refused to sign contracts guaranteeing the closed shop.

Meanwhile the Employers' Association had prepared for the coming contest. As fast as the work of the various members of the association was "struck" by order of the business agents of the various unions nonunion men were promptly put in the strikers' places, and it is stated by the officers of the association that in no case was the work stopped. Nonunion men came from Baltimore and many towns in Maryland, as well as from other cities in the north, and from the South there came a number of colored bricklayers, so that there was no dearth of skilled labor. It was stated that yester-day morning a union foreman of brick-layers accepted a position with a member of the Employers' Association to super-These reductions will enable intend the work of a gang of nonunion you to supply your deferred colored bricklayers. THE TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE Officials of the telegraph companies in New York said yesterday that the general strike order issued from Chicago at 1 o'clock that morning by President Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers Union, had no effect on the situation either in that city or elsewhere.

All the telegraphers who were in sympathy with the strike movement had already gone out, they said, without orders from Small, and the latest mandate from the head of the union was, because of that fact, practically inopera-

Coupled with the declaration of President S. J. Small, of the telegraphers union, that he and his followers are ready to starve in the gutter before they will surrender to the telegraph compa-nies, the strike situation in Chicago yesterday became even more serious we the threatened walk-out of a number allied trades men. President Small declared that the operators never would surrender to the telegraph companies, ments of the Pure Food Law. and that the only possible way to secure their return was through the telegraph companies conceding the demands of the Companies conceding the demands of the new wage scale. "The men and women of the telegraph companies are ready to starve. They will sleep in the street if necessary, and I will go with them, before they will surrender," said the chief.

A conference between Small and President Gompers resulted in a renewal of the arbitration talk that grew unpopular the arbitration talk that grew unpopular with the Chicago strikers early this week. President Small said he would accept the
